WORK TURNED INTO PLAY AT S. S. MEETING

Members Assume Fictitious Parts in "Efficiency Conference of County Association."

REAL INSTRUCTION GIVEN

H. W. Becker, Adult Superintendent, Outlines Advantages of Budget System.

Work was turned into play or "let's pretend like" last night at the state-wide Sunday school officers' conference when the members, taking fictitious parts, represented an "efficiency conference of county association."

The officers that attended, numbering about 300, played up to their parts well, especially those who acted the general officers. Under cover of the business and semi-serious discussions, real instruction in the best method of carrying on county conventions and of meeting difficulties was given. Information about the work of the state Sunday school association was also given.

L. M. Progressive, played by Herman Dumas, general secretary of the state association, was the presiding officer. V. R. Wellinformed, vice-president, was Mrs. Sam Preston of Willow Springs. After a roll call of officers, Mrs. Will Kerpelach, secretary, gave a short address on "Goals for the Districts."

Mrs. C. H. Ross took this part. I. R. Rich, county treasurer, played by H. W. Becker, adult superintendent, spoke on "Building the Budget." He outlined a budget system in which each of the items of expense were given, and using the objections and questions that followed, explained the advantage of such a method over the old haphazard system in force. The amount was set at $665, but was promptly raised at the suggestion of E. F. Rock to $840, since he desired to raise the quota of his district, which he described as a poor one "up in the hills."

A. Stenwinder, state worker, Sterling S. Williams of Kansas City, told of the paper published by the state association, the Missouri Sunday School News, and urged all the members of the imaginary county convention to meet this quota. When he finished, all of the excuses were brought up that anybody at a county convention would ever think of. The favorite one was "I don't get my paper always." These excuses were all satisfactorily overcome.

L. M. Progressive spoke ten minutes on denominational relationships, after which the meeting broke up into separate conferences for general officers, children's division, young people's division, adult division and administration division. In each of these work of the heads of the respective departments was explained and the manner of meeting problems was demonstrated. Miss Love Child, children's county superintendent, was played by Harriet Edna Board; Miss Ophul Young, young people's county superintendent, by Miss Lottia May Bove; George Bachelor, adult county superintendent, by H. W. Becker; and E. E. Finken, administration county superintendent, by Paul H. Videll.

The children's division of the Association held its first meeting this morning with Lansing F. Smith of St. Louis presiding. The principal speakers were: Mrs. Maud Junkin Baldwin of Chicago, Miss Harriet Edna Board of St. Louis, Mrs. E. B. Lewis of Warrensburg and Miss Kathleen Burn of Prairie Home.

Mrs. Baldwin spoke on "Children's Division Program for the Continent." The program of our Sunday school Association for its children's division consists of the following six divisions: first, to promote the denominational standards for the cradle roll; second, to plan children's division sections of district, county and state conventions; third, to promote children's work observed for the purpose of evangelizing the religious education of children which will be held April 24 to May 1, 1921; fourth, to organize community parent-teachers' meetings and associations for the purpose of making surveys in various communities to tabulate the forces at work for the uplift or the downfall of childhood and to build a constructive program for such communities; fifth, to promote exhibits of children's division material in state and county fairs; and sixth, to co-operate with other agencies at work for the uplift of childhood, such as National Congress of Mothers, Children's Bureau, United States Department of Labor, Playground and Recreation Association and National Child Welfare Association.

A. M. Burke, federal prohibition agent from St. Louis, made a special trip to the state capital this morning for that purpose and returned this afternoon. Burke says he expects a deputy marshal here either late tonight or early tomorrow morning with the warrants for the men. The marshal will take the men to Jefferson City. If they are able to give bond, they will be released until their trial comes up, probably next March.

Burke intends to remain in Columbia until tomorrow. A warrant for a fourth man, connected in the charges, was not applied for as there was insufficient evidence in Burke's opinion to convict him.

400 to Eat Chicken Thursday Noon

If Columbians' love for chicken is to be estimated by the number of tickets sold for the annual chicken pie dinner to be given by the Women's Missionary Society of the Broadway Methodist Church, then members of the latter organization know a reason for the high price of fowl in Columbia. Nearly four hundred tickets have been sold for this dinner. It will be given in the basement of the Broadway Methodist Church Thursday noon. The doors will be opened at 11:30 o'clock.

Thomas McRea, governor-elect of Arkansas, and 100 of the newly elected representatives to the Arkansas legislature will arrive in Columbia Tuesday, November 30, for a one-day inspection of the College of Agriculture.

The investigation is with a view to developing the Arkansas College of Agriculture. An appropriation will be asked of the state legislature.

"This is the most notable official group that could come from a state," Dean F. B. Mumford said. "The expense of the delegation are being paid by the Arkansas Bankers' Association because it feels that the development of the College of Agriculture will be the most important step in the industrial development of the state."

"The particular cause of the trip is from the fact that a group of Arkansas business men and educators visited this college last summer and being impressed by the institution, thought it worth while to send the whole Arkansas legislature and governor here."

The trophy will be presented by President A. Ross Hill at the mass meeting on the eve of the Missouri-Kansas game.

"All we need now to make the Homecoming event the greatest success of the year or of any year," said H. C. Draper, chairman of the Homecoming committee, "is the co-operation of every student in the University and good weather on Thanksgiving Day."

The Homecoming parade will inaugurate the Homecoming program on November 25. There will be a float from each department of every school on the campus. The Ad Club and other organizations will be represented by floats and other features of interest. Every county connected with the Ad Club will be represented. Seventy-five counties have already manifested a desire to feature their clubs in some manner. According to Mr. Draper, anyone who has a new idea or new plans will be given space in the procession. The parade will be turned on the street that runs south off Hudson street at 10 o'clock November 25. Those participating in the parade will be arranged in alphabetical order. ### 52 ARE IMPLICATED

Authorities Announce Violators Must Remain at Academy During the Army-Navy Football Game.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Joseph Daniels, Secretary of Navy, said today that all midshipmen in the Naval Academy at Annapolis who were found guilty of hazing would be expelled, regardless of the number implicated. He said that the United States was spending too much money there to allow any violation of the rules by the midshipmen in the school.

Rear Admiral Seales, commandant of the Naval Academy, has the hazing situation in hand, according to an announcement which was given out here by Secretary Daniels. He declared that he was as determined as Admiral Seales to stamp out hazing at the government school.

By United Press.

ANNAPOILIS, Md., Nov. 17.—The fear of expulsion from the Academy has created a feeling of apprehension among the upperclassmen here as a result of the investigation which is being made of the charges of hazing. ## TOO COLD FOR BRICK WORK

But Carpenters Are Still Busy on County Hospital.

The cold weather has stopped bricklaying at the Boone County Hospital, according to N. T. Gentry. The carpentry work is still going on. If the bricklayers can get the building roofed in before the severe cold, thus enabling the carpenters to work inside, the hospital will probably be finished by September 20, next year, the time specified in the contract.

Plans for the arrangement of one of the buildings have been slightly changed. The driveway will have its entrance from the northwest corner on Broadway and Cousins streets and will make a loop directly before the main building instead of to one side as was first intended. This building is placed on the crest of a hill, a little north of the center of the grounds.

The power plant and laundry building, sixty feet to the south, is so constructed as to plumbing, wiring, etc., that a building can later be added to the southeast, and a nurses home to the southwest, both of which can make use of its advantages. A hospital for contagious diseases, planned to be still farther to the southeast, will also be connected with the power plant. The main hospital, which is the only building now being built, faces north and will have an ambulance entrance on the south. A kitchen, dining room, drug room, storage room and seven private rooms will be on the first floor. The second will have twelve private rooms, a sunparlor, and nurses workroom, and the third two operating rooms, ladies' bedrooms, a maternity room, sunparlor and nurses workrooms. The rooms for convalescents will be on the fourth floor and there will be a rooftop.

All the money belonging to the hospital is kept in Boone County depositories and each bank pays 3 per cent interest on the daily balance which is settled each month. The seven banks in which it is kept are: Boone County National Bank, Boone County Trust Co., Central Bank, Conley-Meyers Bank and the Bank of Centralia. The hospital trustees draw no salary.
